

"AUNT NELLIE" JONES TELLS HOUSEWIVES HOW TO BEAT H. C. L.

Madison, Oct. 21.—Professing goes hand in hand with profligate spending. Although much of the buying public is demanding extravagance, common sense will bring partial relief.

That is the opinion of "Aunt Nellie" Kozle Jones, wife of a remodeling, housemaker here, and now on the home economics staff of the University of Wisconsin.

"The press is filled with stories of the high cost of living. Many housewives tell us that the thing is becoming unbearable, but there is relief for the housekeeper who uses common sense and a business head," said Mrs. Jones in a recent interview.

Must Learn To Do Without.
"We can learn to do without a great many things that we have hitherto taken for granted. We have left longer; we can gain more knowledge of foods, and we can buy and use foods in cheaper and bulkier form," she said.

"We buy oranges at 50 cents a dozen, when other fruits can be had that do the same work for our bodies at less cost. Apples, peaches and pears are often easy to buy and easy to use but they are expensive, and there are other foods, such as oatmeal, cornmeal, wheat and rice, that are as good or better and cost less. These new melons my grocer tells me sell readily to women who really do not care much for their taste and still they buy them because they are new and costly."

"We can learn to live more simply," she said. "Our families must learn what the Europeans have learned to a certain extent, always practices. He lives, as a rule, on wholesome, nutritious food, but his diet lacks many of the fruits and vegetables which the American over-abundance."

"He has meat once in a while, possibly once a week, until he comes to America where he must soon learn the habit of eating meat two or three times a day."

Buy Fruits in Season.
"Oranges and bananas were unknown to our grandmothers until the early days. Possibly they saw a few oranges at Christmas time. Even peaches, then, were rare."
"Throwing money away as we do is what keeps so many people poor, and throwing money right and left, until it makes the business man feel that he can raise the price. The buying public demands extravagance. Less cooking will sometimes give the family better food. Eating fruits as they come to us is the best way to eat them during the fruit season. We think of milk as being only a beverage. It is one of the most complete of foods, and should be used as a food and not as a drink."

Select Nourishing Foods.
"Gaining more knowledge of foods will lead us to show more wisdom in the choice of foods when we buy them. In our daily lives we get the habit of eating with our eyes. We want everything that we eat to look just right. In order that we may eat this or that well-advertised product, we allow our grocers to bring others foods from the ends of the earth, without regard for the cost. We eat it and we want it because it has been brought to our notice. That is the only reason that we buy it and pay the price."

"It is not so much the price of food necessities that cost. It's the fancy side dishes, desserts and various accessories."
"Keeping a record of food prices during the year and keeping charts of prices so that the housewife can buy when prices indicate an advantage, is a plan that has received encouragement from several writers on home marketing of foods. Mrs. Jones believes that the plan is not always safe. For instance, many housekeepers buy enough sugar in bulk to last throughout the year. But the sugar shortage of the last year shows that was an excellent plan. A woman has had her sugar doled into a casked hat because prices were so uncertain. It is regulated by the government. We are all charts were found of little use when prices changed so much. Fruits and vegetables come on our market in certain quantities and at certain times. It is the only reason that we buy it and pay the price."

"The major adds to the expense of the housewife. Personal and family necessities are small parcels and they are sold in small packages. It is because the customer wants the goods in small packages."

Saves To Buy in Bulk.
"Grocers are glad to sell in large quantities," explained Mrs. Jones, in using the buying of goods in cheaper and bulkier form.

"The woman who buys a can of peas, cuts them, buys another can, eats them, and buys another can shortly afterwards is wasting time and money. If the family is a small one, several households or at least a few households can join in buying cases of canned goods."
"Recently the cash and carry system of marketing has come into use again, and every housekeeper will find it to her advantage to use the system as much as possible. The woman of the house pays for the delivery of goods at her door."

For Boys to Make

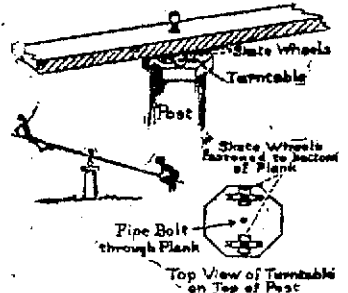

Roller Skate Teeter
By Grant M. Hyde

"Modern invention has done great things for the old-time teeter-tooter. Take the roller skate teeter, for instance," said Uncle Bob. "With a worn-out roller skate, you can put the teeter on ball bearings."

"Whatever you do in building a roller skate teeter, build it carefully, for it is should break, some one might get hurt."

The first essential is a good strong plank, about 10 or 12 inches wide, 1 1/2 inch thick and 19 or 12 feet long. Measure carefully to find the middle and bore a hole for the king bolt.

"For a base, the strongest thing is a stump about 3 feet high, sawed off squarely on top. If no stump is handy, set a strong 6-inch fence post into the ground, by first digging a hole a couple of feet deep and then tamping the earth firmly around the post.

"The turntable on top of the post or stump is made of a piece of board or plank, preferably oak, 10 or 12 inches square, 1 1/2 inch thick, with the corners sawed off. Spike this to the post or stump top."

"Then take apart an old roller skate so as to secure the two parts of wheels and the frameworks to which they are attached. Fasten the two pieces of framework firmly to the bottom of the plank with nails or screws, so that the pairs of wheels are on opposite sides of the bolt hole."

"A piece of 1-inch pipe set into a hole bored through the turntable into the post makes a good king bolt. It is threaded on top, a pipe joint screwed on will keep the plank from flying off. The bolt should be long enough so that the plank rides on the wheels but has plenty of room to teeter up and down."

For Girls to Make

Making Supper Table Attractive
By Caroline Sherwin Bailey

Setting the supper table these fall afternoons may be just as much fun as preparing for a party. It all depends upon how well you do it, whether or not you have a tea party every day in the year. So go to work today making the table beautiful.

With Needle and Thimble
Use small squares of blue and white Japanese toweling or linen squares instead of a large tablecloth. Make these yourself, by hemming the toweling or embroidering coarse linen in a cross stitch pattern. A pretty cross stitch design is a basket of flowers or a wreath in one corner of the dillies and napkins, with the edges neatly hem-stitched or button-holed in color over a narrow hem.

Setting the Table
Place a dolly under each dish. In the center of the table put a few sprays of ivy and bright berries, or some late garden chrysanthemums in a plain glass vase. The silver is always placed, the knife and spoons at the right and the fork at the left of each plate, in the order in which it will be used. The tea things, cream, sugar, hot water and the cups belong on the right. Try to take the cover with a linen cloth.

New Sandwiches and Salads
Sandwiches and salads can be made very pretty to look at as well as to eat. Put brown and white bread together, cutting it very thin, and creaming the butter so it will spread better. Chop nuts and cut up olives to mix with cream cheese, or use jam or jelly for a filling. Hot sandwiches are delicious. Cut bread in circles. Put a slice of tomato, a layer of grated cheese and a slice of bacon on each, and brown them in the oven.

Lay balls made of cream cheese and chopped nuts on a lettuce leaf for a salad at each plate. Oranges and bananas sliced, canned cherries with an almond in each, dates stuffed with butter, butters or cream cheese, and cold vegetables sliced may be used in the same way with a dressing made of olive oil and vinegar.

CHURCH UNION AIM OF RESOLUTIONS OF PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD

The synod of the Presbyterian church business sessions last week at Menasha determined two important steps to be taken. The first concerns the proposition for closer co-operation between Presbyterian and Congregationalists in Wisconsin. The following resolutions were adopted with this end in view:

1.—That the Presbyterians and Congregationalists of Wisconsin endeavor to make the bounds of their respective presbyteries and district associations co-terminous.

2.—That within the bounds of these "Presbyterial associations" we encourage the spirit of cordiality among our churches and leaders in the matter of maintaining and establishing churches and in all other denominational enterprises.

3.—That the permanent committee on home missions of the synod of the Wisconsin Congregationalists be requested, in co-operation with the presbyterial and district extension committees, to cooperate closely in making surveys of their fields in order to discover openings for new churches and also situations where Presbyterian and Congregational churches may be wisely combined, and to take the necessary steps to carry out this program.

4.—Realizing that joint meetings will promote a fraternal spirit and demonstrate the advantages of mutual co-operation, we recommend that arrangements be made for a joint meeting of the synod of Wisconsin and the Wisconsin Congregational conference in October 1920, with provision for similar business sessions, also that similar joint meetings of presbyteries and district associations be held wherever feasible and where the leaders have been made practically co-terminous.

5.—We recommend that the synod of Wisconsin and the Wisconsin Congregational conference request their respective presbyteries and district associations to discuss at their spring meetings the general matter of ultimate practical union of the two bodies, and that they invite recommendations to their respective state bodies at their next annual meetings.

6.—Looking toward a broader application of the foregoing principles, we hereby reorganize the many fraternal and practical plans incorporated in the state organization known as the Wisconsin Federation of Churches and we pledge our respective bodies to a more vigorous effort in making this organization function in the religious life of the state.

In regard to the home mission program the resolutions recommended among other things of routine matters "that the synod of Wisconsin assume self-support in its Sunday school missionary and religious education work, as well as in its administrative council will take the place of the present home mission committee of synod."

HIGHER MILK PRICES PAY ADVANCE ON FEED

Feedprices have advanced, but so have milk prices. In fact, the increased prices now being received for milk and butterfat have stimulated some dairymen to purchase more grain than in former years, according to A. J. Cramer, in charge of the cow testing work in Wisconsin. A member of the Dane county cow testing association who has kept record of his herd in the three years that the association has been running makes comparison of 1917 and 1919 thus:

Feed prices: Barley, $41, $35; oats, $37, $47; bran, $30, $45; oil-meal, $80, $85; grain mixture, $23.40, $55.20; silage, $4, $8; clover hay, $25, $30; pasture, $7.50, $10. Milk sold on a 3.5 percent butterfat basis advanced from $2.40 to $2.25. Taking 7,500 pounds as the average production of each cow in the herd, this dairymen finds that each cow produced $80 worth of milk in 1917 as compared with $243.75 in 1919.

The average cow was fed one and one-fourth tons of grain mixture made up of 200 pounds ground barley, 200 pounds ground oats, 200 pounds of bran, and 100 pounds of oil-meal; four and one-half tons of silage and one and one-half tons of clover hay. She was on pasture five months.

She cost her owner: For grain mixture, $49.26, $63; silage, $27, $36; clover hay, $37.50, $45; pasture, $7.50, $10; total cost of feed, $121.25, $160; value of milk, $130, $423.75; returns above cost, $63.75, $33.75.

ARMY OF 20,000,000
MOBILIZED FOR THIRD
RED CROSS ROLL CALL

The greatest army ever mobilized, 20,000,000 officers and members, will form for the third Red Cross roll call from Nov. 2 to 11, the only public campaign to be waged by the Red Cross this year.

Throughout the country, nearly 4,000 Red Cross chapters with 17,000 branches have organized their forces for the campaign, the purpose of which is to enroll all former members for 1920, to obtain as many additional members as possible, and to raise $15,000,000 to carry on the international, national, and local activities of the organization.

In the central division, comprising the states of Iowa, Michigan, Nebraska, Wisconsin, and Illinois, there are 532 chapters and 4,067 branches, with nearly 4,000,000 members to carry on the campaign. Organizations for the roll call have been completed in virtually all local chapters.

The first step in the preparations for the roll call was a call for 1,000,000 volunteer workers. This was followed up by personal invitations mailed to nearly 2,000,000 active and former workers by the Junior Red Cross and Boy Scout messengers.

As the roll call will open on Sunday, clerical men have been invited to volunteer for the roll call. The roll call will open on Sunday, Nov. 2.

For the work of enrolling Red Cross members the house-to-house canvass system has been adopted as the central feature. Cities and towns have been cut into blocks, each apartment house and public building has been numbered, and women Red Cross workers will be assigned to blocks in which they live. Business and factory districts will be organized separately.

To facilitate the work, national headquarters has granted permission to all present and former Red Cross workers to wear the uniform Red Cross uniforms while engaged in roll call work.

The peace program of the American Red Cross, for which it will ask the United States of the people, includes nation-wide activity for the promotion of public health and prevention of disease through the establishment of community health centers and extension of the nursing resources of cities, towns and rural communities. Broadening of Red Cross home service that has been confined to soldiers and sailors and their families to be of general usefulness where other social agencies are lacking; greatly increased Junior Red Cross activities for the 11,000,000 school children enrolled in that branch; extension of Red Cross facilities for emergency disaster relief; completion of relief measures for victims of the war in this country and overseas; and preparation to fulfill whatever duties may be laid upon the Red Cross as the official volunteer relief society authorized to assist the army and navy.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

Women are being admitted more and more to government positions. They have long acted as postmistresses, and more recently have been hired as postal clerks. It was but a few weeks ago that a woman was made assistant to a cabinet member and so they have become more and more a force in the government.

One Post-War Maxwell

Built Every 1½ Minutes

ONLY 60% of the demand for this magnificent Post-War Maxwell is being filled at the present time. Yet eight great plants are working to capacity, and 13,000 men are devoting their best efforts to provide enough Maxwells. Today, one Post-War Maxwell is being built every 1½ minutes of the working day. This is at the rate of 100,000 cars per year. Imagine what this gigantic production means to a purchaser of a Maxwell car. Think of the gigantic saving in money which the purchase of millions of dollars worth of materials means, and how the list price can be made so low. Think of the accuracy, the sureness of the design of each single part, to take a chance on such rapid and enormous movement of raw material through those great plants to completed product. Then think of the endorsement by the public which this great demand indicates. The basis for this demand is represented in the good will of 300,000 owners of Maxwell cars before the coming of the Post-War Maxwell. And the public bought $200,000,000 worth. They will buy $100,000,000 more in the next twelve months.

A SECOND WARD ALDERMAN.
The suggestion of Mayor Welsh and members of the council of choosing a man to represent the second ward in place of Alderman True, resigned, seems to meet with the approval of many who have expressed their opinions regarding the matter.

The city council has shown a disposition to tackle development problems with a broad vision, and while the needs at this time for rapid adjustment to changing conditions are greater than at any time in the history of Janesville, progress this year has been steady. Next spring should find the administration ready to keep up the pace.

Second ward has good representation in the council and it is up to the citizens of that bailiwick to arrange for a continuance of the program which has been prepared for them.

The proposal that a caucus be held at which Mr. True's successor be named is a good one because it gives the people of that section an opportunity to express their wishes. The council under the revised schedule of 1917 has the right to choose aldermen to fill vacancies without going to anyone for advice, but the city fathers feel that they would not be carrying out their pledges to the people as representatives of the people unless they gave the voters an opportunity to express their choice.

If it is not deemed advisable to hold a caucus, petitions may be circulated and the choice of candidates may be made in that way. Anyway it is the duty of the voters to make their selections known so that the vacancy can be filled without delay and in a satisfactory manner.

EDUCATION AND PLAY

In an interview the other day, King Albert of Belgium remarked that he planned to give special attention to the American system of education and especially the development of recreation as one of its principal features. He has understood that our scheme "Combines learning and outdoor sport in such a way as to produce the best possible results. We, too, have some sport, but in no such measure as the Americans."

Our soldiers in Europe were much struck by the fact that so many of the children did not seem to know how to play. Naturally the little ones were depressed by personal griefs and anxieties, those of their own and those which they shared with their parents and other members of the family. But it was also apparent that even in normal times their play was not systematized and directed as was their course of study.

Many of the teachers seemed to have little understanding of or sympathy with the pleasures of childhood. Recreation had no definite, acknowledged place in the school curriculum. Ascending in the scale, continental college students are not accustomed to take part in vigorous outdoor sports like our football and baseball, which have done so much toward building up American manhood.

The American physique, like that of our Canadian and Australian comrades in arms, evoked special admiration from the French and Belgians, and when our soldiers attributed their stamina and agility to outdoor sports and then proceeded to give their hosts an exhibition of their prowess on the geldiron and diamond, the object lesson created a powerful impression.

There is reason to believe that we have gone farther than other countries in recognizing the legitimate place occupied by athletic sports in the scheme of education and it is not surprising that King Albert, so devoted to the welfare of his people, should wish to secure first hand information on the subject.

MAKING THEM UNDERSTAND.

That the campaign against would-be revolutionists in the Middle West is in the hands of the military authorities will be gratifying to friends of law and order, despite an inbred dislike of the clank of armor in our streets. The moment has been reached when the situation has so far advanced as to demand more expeditious treatment than can be administered through civil processes.

The military can act sternly and promptly; it can cut red tape. This it seems to be doing at Gary and as a result there is fear in the hearts of the agitators throughout the nation.

That the "Reds" are being dealt with firmly will bring assurance to many citizens, although at no time has there been reason greatly to fear the outcome. The disturbers are numerically an insignificant minority. But they are a dangerous minority, as ruthless as any criminal. To yield an inch to them is to invite trouble.

It is unquestionable that when the period of insanity has passed and the "revolutionaries" are forgotten, a review will show that the number of native-born Americans in their ranks was negligible. Real Americans are not deluded by false doctrine. Here is the surest evidence of the soundness of the republic.

CHURCH PUBLICITY.

The director of publicity of the Presbyterian church is an advocate of advertising as a means to draw people churchward and he suggests that a dollar a year per member would not be an excessive appropriation for the purpose, though in the aggregate it would amount to upwards of two million dollars. Why should not a church find advertising profitable? It has something of value to give those who attend. Why not tell about it like the merchant who in detail describes his wares in order to draw customers?

Few church plants are now worked to capacity. Most of them could take care of a large additional number without adding to the overhead expense. If churches perform their intended function they are a force for righteousness, and it certainly would be unethical to proclaim to the public their mission and invite those outside of church influence to come in and share in the benefits.

AMBITION AT THE BOTTOM.

Ambition has many crimes laid to her credit, but one of the most horrible was the attempt of that Michigan mother to kill her babies by administering bichloride of mercury to them. She wanted to go back to the stage, she said, where she would be free to follow the path to fame.

Poor little babies! They were simply in the way of an over-ambitious parent, whose natural mother-love (the greatest love in all the world) was drowned by the flood of ambition.

"Caesar was ambitious," said Mark Anthony, in explaining the murder.

And yet, without ambition, the world never would

THE GOLF BUG.

I spoke about the weather but he answered not a word. He looked across the distance like a man who hadn't heard. I thought the league of nations was a topic he'd discuss. But he wasn't interested in our latest verbal yuss. He was cold and strange and silent till I mentioned golf, and lo!

His eyes began to twinkle and his words began to flow! He talked about his struggles with the Royal, Ancient game;

He told of pros he'd been to and he called them all by name;

He talked of shots he'd mastered and of holes he'd made in two;

He praised the Vardon pivot and the Vardon follow through.

He held me in a corner while he raved about his play. He was on his favorite topic and I couldn't get away.

He talked of drives and brassies and of irons from the rough.

Of his troubles with the putter he could hardly say enough.

He told of holes he'd taken by some shrewd and clever stroke.

His speech came fast and furious, I thought the man would choke.

Then I opened wide the window and I shouted: "Get a cop!"

I've got this golf bug started and I cannot make him stop!"

have become civilized. But, it is necessary to direct our ambitions in the right channels.

Ambition is a trait worth cultivating, but over-ambition is different. It usually results in harm to the possessor of it and to people in his way.

Ambition is a two-edged sword. One must keep it sharp, but must be skillful in handling it.

THE MODERN PREACHER.

There was a time when a preacher was looked upon as a solemn sort of an individual who worked only at chicken dinners, Ladies' Aid society suppers, funerals, weddings, christenings, and twice on Sunday.

Nowadays he is taking an interest in whether the new playground should be situated in the southern end of the city, or whether it should take the place of the city's best park; and why it was that the Reds won the championship over the White Sox.

And some of the sermons deal more with the politics of certain gentlemen than with Peter and Paul.

It is something to be commended.

Short Cuts to Peace

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—Amendment, reservation and resolution are three terms which we read in the papers every day in connection with the peace treaty and the league of nations.

Whatever the merits of the treaty, it now seems certain that the senate is not going to ratify it as it stands. The senate will either amend, reserve, or resolve, and the ultimate consumer will have to wait for his peace until the statements are made.

A pressing question of the moment, therefore, is how long it will take to make a revised and improved peace, by one of the several methods which have been proposed. The whole world is waiting for peace, or at least for some formal statement that we are supposed to be at peace. Many are supposed to be at peace and many others are to end. Ratification will make an important date for almost everyone. We may disagree as to what should be included, but we are all agreed that the whole business should be speedily concluded.

To Amend Means Paris. It seems to be generally understood that to amend the peace treaty means that it would have to be sent back to the peace conference at Paris, and that all of the signatory powers would have to consider it as amended and sign it again. No one denies that this would be a long, slow process. Some say that if the treaty is thrown aside into the ponderous machinery of the conference it will never emerge, but die there of inaction and of old age.

Nobody wants to delay peace any longer than is absolutely necessary, and that is why a great deal more support can be found in the treaty for reservations and resolutions than for amendments.

A resolution, of course, would be simply a statement by the senate to the effect that it disapproves of certain clauses in the treaty. It would make the position of the senate clear, and that is all.

But what is a reservation? What form would it take? How would it be brought officially to the attention of foreign powers? To what extent would they recognize it, and be influenced by it?

These questions were recently addressed by a senator to an expert on international affairs, which shows that even some men in high places do not understand the exact nature of a reservation when it refers to a peace treaty, and not to a place for keeping Indians.

The expert, in his reply, took the Shantung reservation as an example. This reservation is a statement to the effect that the United States does not assent to the clause in the treaty which gives Japan the right to occupy the Shantung peninsula in China. This statement would not be a part of the treaty, but would accompany it, and would not be added as a reservation. It had been passed by the senate, the treaty could be signed by the United States without further delay.

Vote Amendment to State Dept. The reservations would then be turned over to the state department. It would be the duty of the secretary of state, according to the treaty, to address each of the signatory powers, calling the attention to each that the United States government, in signing the treaty of peace, had made certain reservations.

To the great majority of the nation whose representatives signed the treaty, any one reservation would not mean much. Most of them would reply by simply acknowledging that the action taken by the United States had been brought to their attention. Some might endorse this action.

China for instance, would probably endorse our Shantung reservation. The only other nation keenly interested in this Shantung reservation would be France, England and Japan. France and England would not be expected to believe in our reservation, but they would not be expected to oppose it either. They would simply acknowledge our action in the matter.

What would Japan do? According to the expert, Japan would be most unwilling to force any issue. The unwilling Japanese government would probably reply that it had noted the action taken by the United States, and that it took its stand upon the treaty as drafted.

What would have been accomplished then? Japan would not be ousted from Shantung by this reservation. No; but the whole world would have been notified that the United States does not approve of the Japanese occupancy of Shantung, that it stands for Chinese freedom and for the open door policy.

The treaty gives Japan the right to occupy Shantung practically without limit. Japan gave only a verbal promise to evacuate after a certain length of time. China has been unable to obtain a copy of the minutes of the peace conference in which this verbal assurance is supposed to be written. Neither has the United States senate been able to obtain any copy of this promise. The only thing which is written in black and white before the world is that Japan shall have Shantung. But if a reservation is made by the United States senate, it is a written word which all must read that the United States does not assent to that occupancy.

Treaties Not Always Binding. If Japan desires to hold Shantung permanently, which is the continuing force against which the continuing treaty is intended, it is desired to guard, then putting her out would be a matter to which we would have to attend later, in any case. The last few years have clearly shown that treaties are not always binding. The important thing, therefore, is to state our view with regard to Shantung clearly to the whole world so that if it becomes necessary to enforce this view, we can do it without violating our part in the treaty.

The adequacy of the reservation method is indicated by the fact that Thomas F. Millard, a well-known expert on far eastern affairs, who is here as a representative of American interests in China, says that he would be satisfied with the Shantung reservation, provided it is supported by certain other changes in the treaty and in a kindred pact in the tripartite agreement.

Mr. Millard believes that the Shantung reservation, backed up by an amendment to the tripartite agreement, would safeguard the interests of China and of the United States almost as well as an actual amendment to the treaty. And this seems to be the growing view with regard to the Shantung reservation.

With wild and fiendish grin.
If I could wear some armor plate,
And uniform of tin.

I'd like to hear the rifles crack.
The cannon's thundering tone,
If I could do the hearing by

I'd like to camp out in the fields
With all our men of might,
If I could eat at a hotel
And sleep at home at night.

I'd like to "bomb" those Mexicans
At morning, night and noon.
If they would let me lead the fight—
Alloa! in a balloon!

News Notes From Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Miss Blanche McGarity.

When the news spread that Mary Pickford might retire from the stage, people began to wonder who would be the successor of the famous star of the blond curls. Out California way a contest was held to decide who was to be the star's successor. Then the Motion Picture Classic, a photoplay magazine, held a fame and fortune contest to decide who should be the one to follow in Mary's footsteps. Miss Blanche McGarity of San Antonio, Texas, won this contest among more than 200 other contestants.

The accompanying photograph shows that Miss McGarity strongly resembles Mary, but it is a long time since we have seen Mary in such an angelic role, the sweet Mary Pickford of several years ago having turned into a veritable hoyden in her recent pictures.

Eight Hundred Thousand Tons A Year

This is a lot of coke—it is the present capacity of the Milwaukee Solvay ovens. Several thousand tons of this comes to Winona, and it is used by people who want the cleanliness and lasting qualities of hard coal and at the same time materially reduce their fuel bills.

More would be used here if more people knew of its good qualities; there will be more used when they do. It is the ideal fuel for household use—the fuel that all goes to make heat—that leaves practically no ashes.

Have you tried it?
BUY

It does not burn out fire pots or grates and the cost of this coke is less than that of hard coal—it is worth more, because it goes further and makes more heat.

It is smokeless and sootless—no dust or dirt—you can start a fire more quickly and keep it longer than with any other fuel.

By all means buy your fuel now.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: While out of town I met a girl who went with her on evening and cared for her very much, although she didn't take very much interest in me. Later she told me she married but didn't care anything for her husband. She wrote me a letter and told me she loved me and wanted me to come to see her.

Please advise me what to do. Should I write to her or drop her letter? I am sure she is sincere. What should I write? I answer her letter? INTERESTED READER.

Wait until the girl has her divorce and then look her up. Your letters might enter into the case and would be of no help to the woman and embarrassing for you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a young girl 16 years of age. Every one who speaks to me and knows how old I am says I am very small. I dislike to hear this all the time. What can I do to grow?

(2) How old should a young be before she can write to a girl and receive letters from him without having her mother read her letters? Is it my writing good enough for a clerical position? KIDDO.

(3) Take gymnastics and work. Stretching exercises will help you more than anything else.

(4) A girl should not write letters which she would not like to show her mother read, no matter what her age.

(5) Your writing is very good and would enable you to do clerical work.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My steady friend told me the other night that I show too much love for him. I can't stop that. He said he would love me more if I showed less love.

A FRIEND.

You will have to show less love or your friend will tire of you and you will lose him altogether. Do not let him come so often, and when he does come find something to do so that he will not have an opportunity to make love. Some girls make the mistake of showing their affection publicly. They touch the man's arm affectionately, hold his hand and do many other things which are very disagreeable to him.

I should think you would be so hurt from being told such a thing that you would never want to see the man again.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 21 years old and have two sweet hearts. I love one and like the other. The one I love does not live in my home town, but he writes to me often and tells me he still loves me. We are engaged to be married when he comes back to his home town. I went with him four years and could not think of giving him up. The other one I have gone with one year and he tells me he loves me dearer than anyone else, even dearer than he does his mother. I like him but I know I can't have two. How can I tell him I don't love him any more? Every time he writes he asks to kiss me, but I have never let him, as I don't think it would be right.

He said if I told him I didn't love him he would never go with me again. If he loves me as much as he says, he does I am afraid I will hurt his feelings. What shall I do? WORKED.

Of course you should tell the young man whom you don't love the truth, even if you lose him. He will be very much hurt, but time will help him to forget and he will learn to care for someone else. You have been quite right in not kissing him. Do not think that waiting will help matters; let the young man know the truth as soon as possible.

STUDY IN BROWN FOR AFTERNOONS

The Russian or Chinese blouse is by no means passing with summer. It remains with us in great numbers and countless designs for afternoon and informal wear. Georgette, jersey, satin, tulle, and now groundings are used to fashion these fetching blouses. They are worn with many different kinds of slips or separate skirts, but satin seems to be the favored material for the accompanying skirt.

Distinction without ostentation is achieved in this frock. The blouse, which is a most artistic creation, is tastefully embroidered in gold and green and other autumn shades. Satin of a deeper shade of brown forms the underdress and features a broad silk cord with fancy ends ties loosely about the waist, forming the most suggestive of a waistline.

The hat of brown velvet with its widely spreading wings of the same color adds a snappy note to the costume. Tulle-trimmed and tulle-trimmed, the hat is ready for anything which the fall or winter afternoon may bring forth.

HEALTH

EXTENSION DIVISION
Health Instruction Bureau
H. E. Dearholt, M. D., Director

Ohio is challenging the other states of America in a race to make its citizens the healthiest in the union. Each county will have a full-time health officer, public health nurse, and clerk. Cities of over 25,000 population will have city health departments.

All but four counties have already organized their health boards. All of the counties which have completed their health boards have done so by providing for larger expenditures than the state legislature has made for the purpose.

The Ohio plan recognizes the unescapable fact that in this day of rapid and extended railroad and automobile travel, township and village health departments cannot be expected to give the public the health protection that is required, and that by broadening the field of operation.

Dear Miss Randolph: I am a widower, 50 years old, and am interested in a girl of 27 who is a stenographer in the office where I am employed. In your opinion, should I consider her as a husband, or am I too old?

Half Century.

Although many people would say unhesitatingly that there is too great a difference in age, I personally think that age is not so much a matter of years as of mental attitude. At any rate, the only way to find out whether or not you would be acceptable to this girl is to try. Invite her to accompany you to a theatre or out for dinner. You will soon be able to tell from her attitude whether or not she considers you too old.

Questions and Answers

Dear Miss Randolph: How late do you think it is proper for a boy to stay when calling on a girl in the evening? I am in high school and am going with a girl whose mother thinks I should leave at 10 o'clock.

Sophomore.

Ten o'clock is late enough in my estimation, for a boy and girl of high school age to be out alone, for the simple reason that they need plenty of sleep if they are to keep up in their studies. No doubt the girl's mother would not object to your staying later on a special occasion.

CATCHING THEM YOUNG

A good many frail young men selected for army service began to put on weight and feel vigorous and well for the first time in life while they were undergoing training in the military camps. These same young men were inclined to grumble at first because the military and medical authorities seemed to be bent on "treating" them rough. Rough treatment, in the way of normal sleeping hours, a fair amount of exercise every day, and a little less indulgence than mama's boys are accustomed to, proved just the medicine these young gentlemen required. For a few generations back there has been a too great sex intimacy in this country. The sexes have approached each other altogether too closely for the good mental and physical condition too commonly seen in children and youths in schools where education is neglected, especially the physical education of girls, has been called cecilia scholastica. It is about as deplorable as it sounds. But it is not hopeless if taken in time. I believe I break my rule and mention the symptoms of this condition. In this instance it may do good.

Cecilia scholastica is characterized by an untidy nervous system, easily overwrought by trifles, an unnatural liveliness bordering on hysteria, backache, a disordered digestion, a flabby muscular development with a slovenly or weak posture, and in most cases the appearance of a waistline.

The direct or primary cause of the condition is misguided parents; the predisposing cause is a narrow-minded education. The two causes combine to encourage cramming and they either ignore or frown upon the great safety balance—physical education. The girls are urged to think herself "delicate."

EVERYDAY HELPS

BY GRANDMOTHER WELLS

For some reason, eggplant is not the popular dish that it deserves to be. It is cheap, very tasty if properly prepared, and wholesome too. The reason may lie in the fact that few very few Americans know how to deal with an eggplant. They will, most often, peel it and put the slices to stand, salted and under a weight for two or three hours. This takes all the fine delicacy from the vegetable and leaves it wilted and flabby. Among the Hindoo cooks, who excel in the preparation of eggplant, the accepted way is to bake it first, then use the pulp, baked, as a foundation for several different dishes.

To make the eggplant in the oven whole, and let it bake with a moderate heat for about forty-five minutes, or until you can tell, by inserting a fork, that the inside is soft. Then peel it, as you would a baked potato, mash the pulp, and use it in any of the following ways:

For browned eggplant, melt some butter in a frying pan, put the mashed pulp into the pan, and let cook until all the moisture has evaporated. Then the eggplant should be turned out on the bottom of the pan. Let it brown on both sides. Serve it in a mound on a platter, with a garnishing of parsley or slices of hard-boiled eggs.

To make this cook a good-sized onion, sliced, in butter until it is brown. Then add the eggplant pulp, season with salt, cayenne and black pepper, and let the whole mixture brown in the frying pan.

Fritters can be made by making a batter of one cup of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, and enough milk to make it stiff, one egg well beaten; stir in the mashed eggplant and drop the mixture, a spoonful at a time, into hot fat.

To make eggplant patties, mold the seasoned pulp into little flat cakes, dip each one into beaten egg, then into bread crumbs and fry in hot fat.

If you want to fry eggplant in slices, prepare the slices as you would dip into a batter. Fry slowly in fat.

Mrs. T. S.

You can keep the juice from running out of your fruit pies if you make a little funnel of writing paper, and insert it in a slit in the center of the pie. The juice will come out of the funnel, then sink back into the pie.

THE LOWLY CARP.

Fried Carp with Brown Gravy—Cook finely chopped onion with a small amount of fat in the frying pan. When the onion is brown, place the carp in the pan with the onion and cook slowly until the carp is brown.

Brown Sauce: Two tablespoons of beef drippings, two tablespoons of flour, one and one-half cups soup stock, two cloves of garlic, one tablespoon chopped green pepper, one teaspoon of salt. Prepare as for soup stock. Pour this sauce over the carp in the frying pan and cook slowly until the carp is tender.

Scalloped Carp—Any cold cooked carp may be placed, alternate layers with white sauce, onion sauce, tomato sauce or sour sauce in a baking dish. Cover the top with crumpled paper and bake in a hot oven until heated through.

Carp en Casserole—Roll the boned carp into tender. Place it in a casserole in a baking dish, pour over it the juice of one-half lemon, and cover it with a sour sauce or a brown sauce. Bake until the sauce boils, about 15 minutes. Serve in the dish in which it has been cooked.

Carp Salad—Use any left over cooked carp. It stands for one hour in the following sauce: One cup vinegar, six sliced onions, six whole peppers, six sliced berries, two cloves of garlic, one-half pound of butter, one teaspoon salt. Boil these together 15 minutes. Keep the amount of liquid the same by boiling water as needed. At the end of the hour add the carp, and mix cold with a French dressing, boiled dressing or mayonnaise dressing.

Stuffed Baked Carp—Prepare carp by skinning and removing entrails. Stuff the carp with a dressing as follows:

Two cups soaked stale bread, four tablespoons butter, one-half cup ground nutmeg, one-half teaspoon pepper, one teaspoon salt. Place the bread in a dripping pan, pour the dressing over it, and bake in a hot oven until the bread is brown. Serve with parsley and slices of lemon.

RECIPE FOR A DAY.

Fruit Salad—Arrange alternate layers of shredded pineapple, sliced bananas and sliced oranges; sprinkle each layer with powdered sugar. Chill before serving. Shred pineapple with cold water. Peel the oranges remove skin and white covering. Slice lengthwise.

Chestnuts on Casserole—Remove shells from three chestnuts, put in a casserole dish and pour over three cups highly seasoned chicken stock. Cover and cook in a slow oven three hours, then thicken chicken stock with two tablespoons butter and one and one-half tablespoons flour cooked together. Serve in casserole dish.

LIFE ALIMONY PRISONER

New York, N. Y.—David Gold-hub, who has been dubbed the "lifelong prisoner," was sentenced to life in the Ludlow street jail, where his hands who fail to pay alimony are imprisoned. Goldhub was sent to Ludlow on the complaint of his wife who charged that he was $500 behind in his payments. How can he produce $500 when they won't let me out to work for it? is the problem that confronts the prisoner. He declares that he is penniless and that he must stay in Ludlow until he pays up.

RATS WALK LONDON WIRES

London, Eng.—Rats are becoming so bold here that they are often seen crossing the city streets on telephone wires. The practice of the rodents is said to be partially responsible for the poor telephone service, about which everyone is complaining these days.

FREE LANCE BURGLAR

Ossining, N. Y.—Ben Mason, known throughout the United States as the "free lance burglar," because he never worked with confederates, has been paroled from Sing Sing prison. "Big Ben" is now 75 years old and has served two score years in various prisons.

TROCO

Users Like to Think About Coconuts and Milk

Enjoyment of the sweet, delicate Troco flavor is further enhanced by knowledge of its ingredients. Dainty nut fat is extracted from the white meat of coconuts and churned with pasteurized milk—an appetizing combination of the food standbys of the Tropic and Temperate Zones.

Add to this the certainty that Troco is made in up-to-date modern plants where every process is sanitary and you know why users like Troco so well. The saving of from 25 to 40 cents a pound is an added inducement.

We churn and ship Troco daily, on ice. Dealers should order in small quantities, and often, always keeping their stock in the ice box.

Troco is for sale everywhere by dealers who specialize in the finest food products. If you can't secure it in perfect condition, send your dealer's name to the Troco Nut Butter Company, Chicago.

Troco is labeled "oleomargarine" because of old laws passed before it was invented. But it contains no animal oils, just pure vegetable fats and pure pasteurized milk.

BADGERS TRAIN FOR CRUCIAL GAME WITH ILLINOIS, SATURDAY

Madison, Oct. 21.—With their first "Big Ten" victory in tow the Badgers returned to Camp Randall for the hardest grind of conditioning and polishing they have yet gone through. Next Saturday they face Illinois, reputed to be one of the strongest contenders for the conference pennant.

A victory would mean almost everything in the way of chances for the final supremacy of the Cardinal colors, and every effort will be strained to wreck the hopes of Illinois.

Teams Hard to Compare. There is still little opportunity to compare the two teams, because of the narrow scores and evident unfinished condition of the playing of both. The coming week will probably see great improvement in both eleven, and the battle should be a hard fought one.

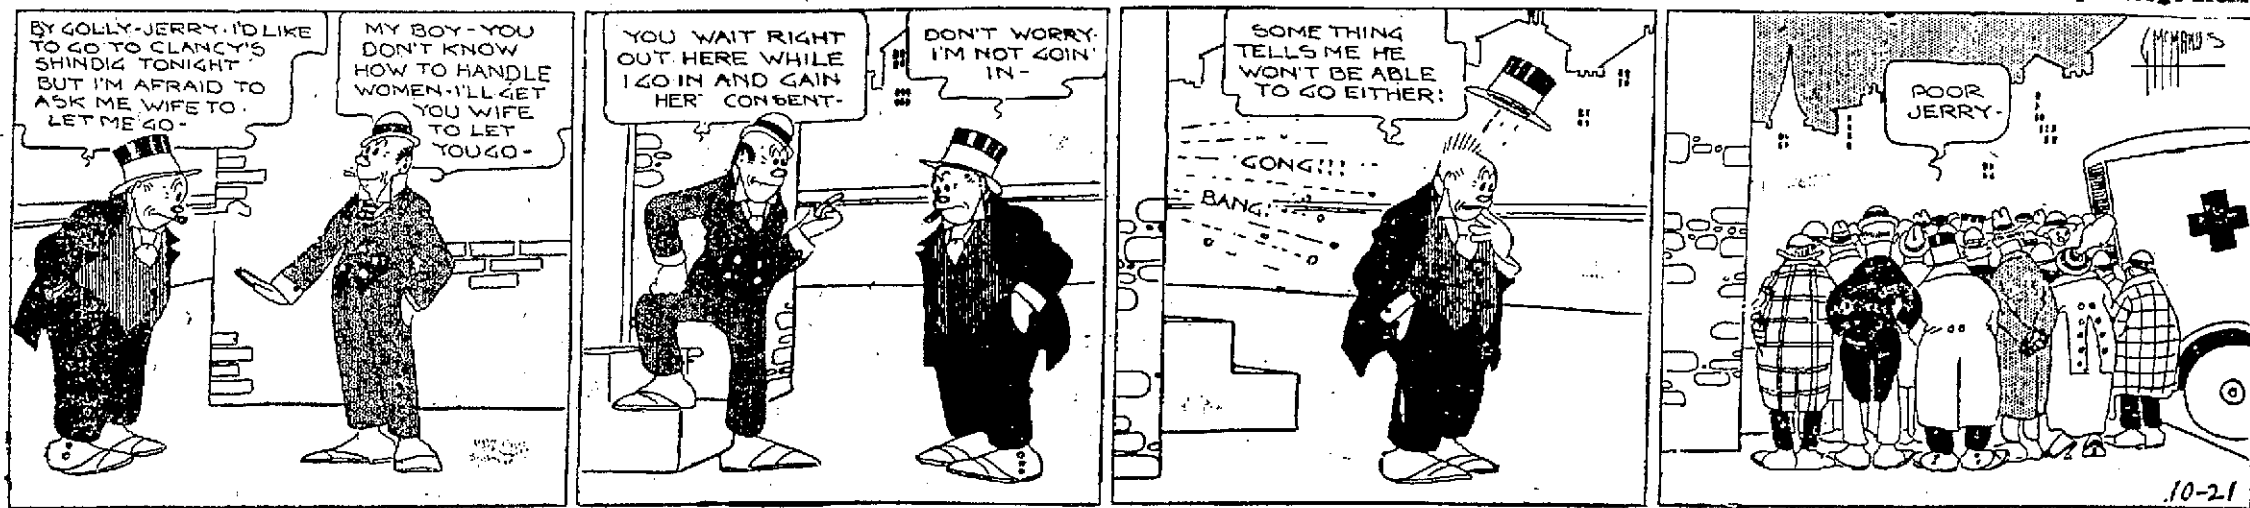

Wisconsin's scores have only been enough to "get by," and not at all sufficing, has been a surprise. The defensive in the closing sections of games, whether real or camouflage, has been a surprise.

Against their first opponents the Badgers have looked good, however, and will go to next week's bout with high hopes. Two victories at the Illinois have put them at the top of the heap, but Wisconsin, Chicago and Minnesota are still equal contenders for the conference championship.

Line Shift Big Asset. The superb forward passing of Davey, quarter, has been a source of great satisfaction, and the ability to work the back units in unfavorable conditions makes it a strong asset to the Badger warriors. With Coach Richards' recent shift in the line, placing Scott, the big tackle, at guard, and moving Brader, former end, to tackle, the first defense has been greatly strengthened, and another source of worry practically removed.

In the game with Northwestern the team presented a well balanced, easy working machine, with the stellar work of Meyers, Davey, Weston, Jacob and Stunt always in evidence.

OHIO-MICHIGAN GAME REGARDED AS BATTLE FOR CONFERENCE FLAG

Columbus, O., Oct. 21.—The crucial week in the Ohio State schedule has arrived. Michigan, the only team in the western conference that Buck eyes feared, will be met at Ann Arbor this week-end in what should be the title deciding game.

Coming out of the Kentucky State game with hardly a bruise, the varsity men were plunged into their task at the start of the practice yesterday without the sign of a letup in the hard grueling they have been undergoing.

Round Out Defense. Work in perfecting new plays and rounding out the defense of the line occupied Dr. White last night. Reports of scouts who witnessed the Michigan eleven in action Saturday were received with much interest by football men and students on the campus Sunday.

Wolverines Drill on Signals. Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 21.—Secret signal practice and a little booting and forward passing was the portion of the Wolverines last night. Fortunately the two injured men, Johnson and Fortune, are less badly hurt than was at first feared. Fortune's hand was x-rayed today, showing that no bones had been broken and the extent of the injuries are deep cuts and bruises from a cleated boot. Johnson's ankle is in better shape than was thought yesterday, and he may be used at center for part of the Ohio State game on Saturday. Cruise will not be available. He has been out of the game for over a week with a bad leg and his doctor forbids his playing next Saturday.

If more communities did as much for their local paper as the local paper does for the community, there would be fewer weekly newspapers going out of business.

George D. Sutton, Chicago, won the second game of the tournament. He defeated George F. Slosson, New England, 600 to 237. Sutton's average was 184-22 with high runs of 70, 53 and 61. Slosson's average was 10-22, with high runs 68, 25 and 22.

Twins Will Oppose Each Other In Yale-Princeton Conflict

By N. E. BROWN. One of the oddest little battles ever staged in collegiate football may be witnessed when Yale and Princeton clash in their annual football battle Nov. 15 in the Yale bowl.

Here's the why. Captain "Tim" Callahan will play center for Yale and there's a good chance that his twin brother "Mike" will play the same position for the Tigers.

According to college football experts this will be the first time in history that two brothers have opposed each other directly, although brothers have been on opposing teams before in different positions where they were not pitted against each other.

In 1884 the Pennsylvania-Princeton game presented this situation. Mitchell Rosegarten played and rushed for the University of Pennsylvania.

who is attending the university. Mrs. Will Casey was elected chairman of the Red Cross society at a meeting held Friday evening at Mag-nolia.

Owen Trevorrath, Janesville, and Verne Owen, Footville, spent Saturday with Roy Timm's family here.

A number from here attended the funeral of Mrs. Kate Meahan at Footville Monday morning.

Mrs. Frank Bennett, Cora Diefahl and Nellie Gardner were passengers to Janesville Saturday.

vanla. His brother Harold played left half for the Tigers. The game was staged at Trenton. Harold was sent around his brother's end frequently, and how Mitch did nail him. Ridge Hart was playing halfback for the Tigers in 1901 when they tackled Yale, and his brother Johnny was playing in the backfield for old Eli.

It is an odd fact that Yale and Princeton seemed to have cornered the players in these brotherly affairs. Most everyone is familiar with the famous families of boys who have starred for the same college—the Poes at Princeton, the Riggs at Princeton and the Thayers at Pennsylvania. Western Reserve broke into the list when the Portman brothers, all giants, blew into the Cleveland school. They were known as Doc, Muff and Art, and raised merry hob with the opposition during their careers.

BULLETS FOR SALE

London, Eng.—The disposal Division of the Ministry of Munitions is selling 100,000,000 bullets. It would not be possible to fire more than half that number from British rifles. The purchasers of the bullets plan to melt them and use for the metal for commercial purposes.

$4,000,000 TO REVEAL NAME. New York, N. Y.—The mysterious "Mr. Smith" who gave $7,000,000,000 to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has agreed to reveal his name, along with an additional gift of $4,000,000 if another $4,000,000 has been raised by the institute by January 1, 1920.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

BY JACK KEENE.

Michigan will celebrate its complete return to the conference this season. It is true that it availed itself of the door left ajar last season, but was seen only a few games. The Wolverines took a fall out of the University of Chicago, which is nothing out of the ordinary. However, little of a definite line on the comparative merits of Michigan and the other schools of the conference could be had. This season Michigan will face five of the conference colleges. Michigan begins with Ohio State and includes Northwestern, Mount Union and the University of Detroit. Both teams were originally used as stepping stones to later games, but in 1917 Detroit threw a scare into Yost by nearly emerging with the Wolverines' scalp. Mount Union was trounced 69-0.

Al Reich, the heavyweight, who was once looked upon as a formidable "white hope," is contemplating a return to the squared circle. Reich who has acted as a boxing instructor for several months at one of Uncle Sam's cantonments, declares that he is now bigger and stronger than he ever was and is confident that he can defeat many of the present day heavyweights. If he does "come back," one of his first moves will be to get a match with Al Roberts, the Staten Island heavyweight, who is busy knocking out big fellows in Jersey rings. The experience Reich gained in rings several years ago should be a great aid to him in his planned "come back."

Jimmy Hill, the Australian featherweight, who until he fought Barney Adair recently in Boston encountered great difficulty in obtaining matches, is now in demand. He has received offers from promoters in Philadelphia, Cleveland and Boston. The Australian's recent twelve-round contest with Adair resulted in a draw, or rather that is what the referee decided, but the verdict did not meet the wish with approval of the majority of ringfighters. In their opinion Hill should have been declared the winner on points, and when Larry Conley, who acted as third man in the ring, called it a fifty-fifty affair the verdict, according to reports from the club, was greeted with hisses.

Despite the fact that his opponent had a thirty pound average over him, Hill made a remarkable showing and during the first nine sessions Adair, according to many Hub fans, was outpointed by a wide margin. Barney in the last rounds made a belated spurt that enabled him to finish on what the referee decided even terms with the lad from the Antipodes. When Hill climbed out of the ring he received a great ovation from the fans. Immediately after the bout the matchmaker of the Armory A. A., the club at which the fight was staged, was anxious to sign Hill for a return match with Adair, but as Hill's manager had received offers from Philadelphia and Cleveland for the Australian's services it was decided to postpone action on a return contest.

Hill is willing to meet Johnny Kilbane or any of the contenders for the Cleveland lad's title. Benny Valour, who for the past few months has been very busy hurling challenges in English and French in the direction of the featherweight title holder, is among the list of men Hill wants to meet. The Australian is also willing to meet contenders for the lightweight crown.

HOPPE SHOWS FORM IN OPENING MATCH

New York, Oct. 21.—William Hoppe last night eclipsed all other contestants in the opening matches of the American national 15.2 bulk line championship billiard tournament at the hotel Astor.

The former title holder made two phenomenal runs of 149 and 138 in mastering Welker Cockran by the score of 400 to 1-5. The result furnished the answer to the efforts of Cockran, made a year ago for a match. Hoppe's average was 44-4-9. At all stages he played close billiards, the deftness in controlling the sphere being unusually good.

The victories of Otto Morningstar and George B. Sutton were not so brilliant as that of Hoppe, although they played well, and made a fine showing. Hoppe, 400 average 44-4-9; high runs 149, 138 and 79. Cockran, 138, average 12-1-3; high runs 54, 44 and 10.

Otto Morningstar, the cue star of Indiana, won the first match from Jake Schaefer, San Francisco. The score was 400 to 395. The highest run of Morningstar was 129. Schaefer's highest run was 91. The game went 13 innings and was marked by

BOWLERS URGED TO BE ON DECK TONIGHT

With formation of a city bowling league as the main business on the program, all bowlers in the city, or men who have never bowled before, but who want to learn, are urged to attend the meeting at Arcade alleys at 8 o'clock tonight. Should an interest warrant, it is probable that the organization of at least two leagues of from six to eight teams each will be completed tonight.

FIGHT DECISIONS

Harry Wills won from Joe Jeanette in eight rounds. Bill Brennan defended Dan O'Dowd in eight rounds and Dave Roschberg knocked out Fube Lundy in the third round at Jersey City, N. J.

Joe Welsh defeated Jack Perry in ten rounds at Pittsburgh. Frankie Willie Jackson outboxed Johnny Drumme and Wally Hilde trimmed Jimmy Sullivan at Philadelphia.
